Preface

The fifth volume of the "Chorology of trees and shrubs in South-West Asia and adjacent regions" covers descriptions of ranges of a further 50 species. They belong to 25 genera and 19 families, of which seven are represented by only a single species. The greatest number of species is given for the following families: Leguminosae (9), Rosaceae (7), Celastraceae (5) and Araliaceae (4). The volume treats primarily shrubs or small trees, and less commonly large trees attaining 24 - 25 m in height (Quercus). A few species are shrublets, usually no taller than 1 m (Berberis cretica L., Lithodora hispidula (Smith) Griseb., Linum arboreum L., Comarum salesovianum (Stephan) Asch. et Graebner, Putoria calabrica (L. f.) DC.) and six species are climbers (Hedera, Clematis, Ampelopsis).

The range maps have been prepared on the same principles as in former 4 volumes. Only in the case of Ficus carica L. a certain modification was introduced, namely the range of subsp. rupestris (Hauskn.) Browicz is shown as a point map while the range of subsp. carica is shown only with the help of a border line. The reasons for this are given in text. The literature listing has been increased by a further 49 items.

The texts have been translated into English by M. Giertych from Kórnik.

The volume is devoted to the study of the
